Biographical Sketch of James Berlin

James Berlin was a faculty member in the Department of English at Purdue University from 1987 to 1994. He was a nationally renowned educator and scholar in rhetoric and composition, valued for his leadership in the development of a cultural studies approach to teaching writing. He was also known for his scholarship on the history of rhetoric and composition theory.

Berlin was born in 1942 in Hamtramck, Michigan. He attended St. Florian High School, where he played football and basketball. He entered Central Michigan University on a football scholarship, receiving his Bachelor of Arts degree and graduating summa cum laude in 1964. Berlin began teaching in elementary schools in Flint and Detroit, Michigan. In 1969 he entered graduate school at The University of Michigan, working towards a degree in English. He received his Master of Arts degree from Michigan in 1970, and his Ph.D. in Victorian literature from there in 1975. His doctoral dissertation was on the relation of German Idealism to Tennyson, Browning, and Arnold.

After he received his Ph.D. he accepted a position as Assistant Professor of Composition at Wichita State University (1975 until 1981). While at Wichita State, Berlin served as the first director of the Kansas Writing Project. Berlin later worked as Associate Professor of English at University of Cincinnati (1981-1985), where he was also Director of Freshman English. In 1985 he joined the faculty of the University of Texas at Austin as a Visiting Associate Professor of English; at the same time he was serving as a visiting professor at Penn State University. Berlin joined the Purdue University faculty as Professor of English in 1987.

Berlin was a member of the National Council of Teachers of English, the Modern Language Association, the Ohio Council of Teachers of English and Language Arts, the College English Association of Ohio, and the Rhetoric Society of America. He published numerous journal articles on rhetoric and teaching composition, and was the author of Writing Instruction in Nineteenth-Century American Colleges (1984) and Rhetoric and Reality: Writing Instruction in American Colleges, 1900-1985 (1987). Berlin died suddenly of a heart attack on February 2, 1994. He was survived by his wife, Sandy, and his sons Chris and Dan.
Scope and Contents of the Collection

The James Berlin Papers (1978-1994; 7 cubic feet) contain papers and other materials created or collected by James Berlin during his academic career, with an especially extensive representation of his work during his years as a Professor of English at Purdue University (1987-1994). The Berlin Papers include research and writing notes, instructor’s class notes and other teaching records, as well as correspondence with a large and varied group of scholarly colleagues. The collection generally reflects the state of Berlin’s academic files at the time of his death in 1994.

The papers document Berlin’s participation in the 1978-1979 National Endowment for the Humanities seminar on rhetoric invention led by Richard Young at Carnegie-Mellon University. This seminar has been recognized as among the most significant events in the early development of the contemporary field of rhetoric and composition studies. The bulk of the papers relate to Berlin’s work in developing a cultural studies composition pedagogy, particularly materials from seminars in Purdue’s graduate program in rhetoric and composition and from mentoring graduate teaching assistants in Purdue’s first-year composition program.

The papers also include copies of articles and book chapters Berlin used for his research; the majority of these contain Berlin’s marginalia. The papers also include extensive correspondence with Berlin’s academic colleagues, who often sent Berlin drafts of their scholarly works in progress. Materials related to Berlin’s work on faculty committees at Purdue University include minutes and notes from committee meetings and activities. Berlin was a member of the School of Liberal Arts Senate when it was reviewing the proposal for its major curriculum revision “Curriculum 2000,” a member of the English Department Policy Committee, and a member of departmental committees related to the development of composition and professional writing curricula.

Confidential materials such as student records, letters of recommendation, and tenure and promotion reviews have been separated into one restricted box. Restrictions on access to these materials will be lifted in the year 2064.

The arrangement of the papers reflects Berlin’s original order, with a few exceptions. Teaching related materials from Berlin’s papers were used and subsequently returned by faculty members who taught Berlin’s classes after his unexpected and sudden death; thus, the original order of these materials cannot be certain. Berlin’s handwritten research notes have been organized chronologically. Readings included in Berlin’s research materials are organized alphabetically by subject or author, reflecting Berlin’s own folder titles and order.

The papers are divided into six series:

1. NEH Seminar Materials, 1978-1979 (0.5 cubic feet)
The series documents Berlin’s participation in the National Endowment for the Humanities year-long seminar in twentieth century rhetorical theory led by Richard Young at Carnegie
Mellon University. Types of materials include Berlin’s reading and discussion notes from the seminar, copies of assigned readings, and other materials developed by seminar participants.

   The teaching materials document Berlin’s teaching career from 1981 to 1994, which the bulk of the materials relating to his graduate teaching at Purdue University from 1987 to 1993. Included are materials related to his development of a cultural studies pedagogy for graduate teaching assistants whom he mentored in the first-year composition program at Purdue and materials related to graduate seminars in rhetoric and composition. Types of materials include syllabi, exams, lecture and discussion notes, and copies of course readings.

3. Research Materials, 1984-1994 (1.5 cubic feet)
   The series includes handwritten research notes from an extensive historical review of composition-related journals, annotated copies of printed scholarly articles and book chapters, and unpublished drafts and conference papers. Included in the papers are numerous note pads filled with Berlin’s research for his publications Writing Instruction in Nineteenth-Century American Colleges and Rhetoric and Reality: Writing Instruction in American Colleges, 1900-1985.

4. Collegial Correspondence, 1979-1994 (1 cubic foot)
   Items in the series include letters and notes from national and international academic colleagues as well as copies of works in progress Berlin’s colleagues sent to him for review.

5. Faculty Governance and Community Activism, 1987-1994 (0.5 cubic feet)
   Faculty committee meeting minutes, proposals developed by faculty committees, and other materials related to university community governance and activism in which Berlin participated are included in the series.

   Confidential materials include student records such as grade sheets and examinations, confidential collegial correspondence such as letters of recommendation, tenure and promotion reviews, and confidential committee materials such as notes on candidates applying for faculty positions.

Preservation Note
All materials have been housed in acid-free, lignin-free folders and boxes. All newsprint has been photocopied and original newspaper clippings have been discarded.

Separations or Transfers of Materials
Confidential student records, letters of recommendation, peer reviews and candidate evaluations have been separated and placed together in a restricted box.
