Collection Description

Scope

The Jacqueline Kruper Women in Aviation papers and rare books (1927-2015; 3.45 cubic feet) give a glimpse into the lives of key aviatrixes in the earliest years of flight, along with pioneer aviators. The ephemera includes magazine advertisements from 1943, which provide a unique look into how women aviators were portrayed during the 1940s. The papers also include Jacqueline Kruper's writings for Woman Pilot magazine, and book reviews for Minerva: Quarterly Report on Women and the Military and H-Minerva, H-Net Reviews.

Types of materials include: advertisements, articles, books, book reviews, booklets, and aviation magazines.

Arrangement

The papers are arranged into two series:

1. Advertisements and Writings, 1943-2015 (0.45 cubic feet). Within the series are unique advertisements featuring women aviators taken from the October 1943 issue of Ladies Home Journal. The ads are for R.J. Reynolds Tobacco (Camel™ cigarettes) and Cutex™ fingernail polish.

Also found here are four articles written by Kruper for Woman Pilot, along with 3 book reviews she wrote for the Minerva Center for Women and the Military: The Minerva Center, Inc. is a non-profit educational foundation founded in 1983 to provide information and inspiration to military women and women veterans and supported scholars, journalists, filmmakers, public policy activists and others engaged in the study of women and war.

This series also contains a small booklet about the Women Airforce Service Pilots (WASP), often referred to as "flygirls," and a Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum 2015 member calendar.

Materials in the series are arranged by type of material and chronologically within each grouping.

2. Books, 1927-2009 (3 cubic feet). The book collection is comprised of 43 rare books related to pioneer women aviators; women aviators and World War II; "Aviation: A history through art;" the poster collection of the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum; "Mr. Piper" of Piper Aircraft; Anne Morrow and Charles Lindbergh; Jeanna Yeager and Dick Rutan (Voyager), among others. Some of the books focus on aviatrixes Amelia Earhart, Harriet Quimby, Beryl Markham, Jacqueline Cochran; Evelyn Bryan Johnson (flight instructor), Anne Morrow Lindbergh, and Jeanna

Yeager. Pioneer aviators featured in the books are Charles Lindbergh, Harold F. Pitcairn, Denys Finch Hatton, William Piper, Antoine de Saint-Exupéry, Louis Bleriot, and Dick Rutan.

The books have been cataloged and added to Purdue's Karnes Archives and Special Collections. The finding aid lists the titles and publication information, and they appear in chronological order. Some are first editions and/or have been signed by the authors, and these are duly noted in the records.
